Jewish Congress Takes Exception

The Canadian Jewish Congress takes exception to some of the provisions of the new immigration policy of the Dominion Parliament, and to members of Parliament who have been formulated and voted to members of the Congress. Various branches of the Congress have endorsed the policy. Mr. J. V. Yoder, President of the Belleville branch of the Jewish Congress, sent the following telegram in accordance with the general sentiment:

Mr. C. S. Porter, K.C., M.P.
House of Commons, Ottawa, Ont.
Would ask you to consider or support following objections to Immigration Act amendments:

1st—Writers of Canada depend on wholesome healthy immigration to develop our country's natural resources. To restrict immigration is to restrict our country's natural resources. To restrict immigration is to restrict our country's natural resources. To restrict immigration is to restrict our country's natural resources.

Electric Chair Instead of Rope

OTTAWA, May 3.—(House of Commons.)—Mr. H. M. Moore introduced a bill to amend the Criminal Code. The amendments proposed for the abolition of electrocution instead of hanging for the death penalty. The bill provides that the present method of execution in many provinces is not hanging was not always properly done and the criminal suffered unnecessary pain. It is the result of this that the bill had been demonstrated in the United States that execution by electricity was painless and instantaneous. The bill also provides, he said, that execution should not take place at a local jail, but in the nearest provincial penitentiary. The bill is original would be properly granted. He said that if criminals awaiting execution should be confined in the jail there was always danger of escape, and that the McCollough case in Toronto was an illustration.

Rich Canadian Falls For Old Swindle With New Tricks

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 3.—Arthur S. Belmont, of Montreal, former member of the Canadian Parliament, appeared before Judge William P. Brown in the City Court yesterday, charged with a misunderstanding he failed to answer on Tuesday to answer a charge of grand larceny, in connection with the theft of $15,000 from Michael Connolly, of Montreal.

Belmont explained his own appearance on Tuesday saying that in a conversation which he had with his brother, Ernest W. McIntyre, over the telephone from New York on Saturday Mr. McIntyre gave him to understand that the hearing was to be adjourned.

On Tuesday, Alexander Taylor, counsel for Connolly, opposed an adjournment because Belmont was not present, but requested that the bond for $15,000 which had been put up by a surety company be returned.

This Judge Bennett refused to do, because Belmont's attorney, A. McIntyre, had told the judge that he did not tell his client not to appear, he did say that the hearing would have to go over and he feared that his client had misunderstood him. At this time McIntyre asked for an adjournment of but two days to let Belmont's good faith and if after that time Belmont failed to appear, the bond could be forfeited. It was Taylor who suggested that the hearing be set for May 4.

Big Sentimentality
As a result of the investigation of private detectives following the Connolly case, it is said that disreputable men will be made within a few days, will involve a prominent business man and two members of the police department.

Three Buffalo men beside the Buffalo men and his alleged two friends were said to have aided in the big "game" in which Arthur Belmont is alleged to have been the principal beneficiary.

Certain members of the Buffalo police department are said to have requested that they be doubled—two men are finding cases which they can make a result of private detectives.

It is claimed that the two police officers, under suspicion, saw the first brothers, shortly before the last arrest was pulled off, and were on the verge of arresting them when they were told to keep their hands off by influential business men.

They were to look for remuneration in consideration of letting the two men get away.

Private detectives claim the two men are now in the city.

"Upon his brow Time and his brother Care have set some marks, as on a tree that was to come down in good time—remember twice they are for striding through human forests, nothing as they go."

Time and Care get their marks upon us all. In a few years the woodmen will follow the foresters and the trees will fall. It is another way of saying what we have been repeating for half a century. Our lives at any time may fail, and then those who have been supported by our efforts will be rendered helpless unless they have been made ready for them—which brings us back to the first point.

The Mutual Life

S. BURROWS, GENERAL AGENT
BELLEVILLE ONT.

LITERATURE and Journalism have always been closely associated in Canada. As a young country there has not developed a background and atmosphere suitable for writing as a profession, such as exists in most European nations. Although there is naturally a pride over the per-of most of the Canadian writers, certain circumstances have retarded development. The precarious status of the country in the world of nations has prevented the growth of a strong national spirit and a spirit as free expression as that written word. To this must be added the handicap of the proximity of the United States and Great Britain flooding the Canadian market with their best books in the common language of the Canadian people. In these circumstances, where the Canadian public is raising the standard of widening the selection of books, is a real factor in promoting the development of a powerful literature. It is in these circumstances that the widest range of books is available to Canadian writers, but unfortunately too many of them induce residence in another country.

The general considerations occur in connection with any review of Canadian literature for the past twenty-five years. Apart from such writers as Thomas Chandler Haliburton, the original humorist of this continent, who lived and died in Nova Scotia, and the excellent, more imperishable narrative of the first story of the Canadianism, the main portion of Canadian literature has been written during the past half century. It is generally conceded that the achievement of Canadians ture has been in poetry. Here, after all, a great outdoor people, and this has found a place in the nature poetry of Canadian writers. Several have won international standing. Critics of other countries have been slow to acknowledge their achievement. What has been roughly called the "Ottawa School" of "THE Canadians require more men to guard them, did less work, and caused more worry and trouble than any other prisoners," said Lieut. J. Beverley Robinson, R.A.F., two and a half years a prisoner of war, escaping on his second attempt, being the only Canadian soldier who succeeded in escaping.

"The Germans tried to make me brag about the spirit of the Canadians than they do any other prisoners but they didn't do it. Our men stuck it, and when they got a chance they got back at the Germans with interest," said Edward Lewis, Robinson.

"Never have I read a single line which exaggerated the treatment of the prisoners of war by the Germans. I have found a disposition on the part of some to make light of the stories of cruelty which have been told. Do not make light of them for they are all true. There are worse stories than any you have heard yet. If you are inclined to make light of the worst, I suggest you try to think what it means to live for months or years in the unsanitary, pestilential camps in Germany."

"I have seen even German F.C. Cross workers spit in bowls of water which they brought into the train and then (brow) it into the faces of all the officers. I have seen wounded soldiers dragged to the doors of the cars and there spat upon and jeered at."

Lieut. Robinson was taken a prisoner when flying in a fog, and was forced to make a landing in territory captured by the Germans. His machine was seriously crippled by German bullets, so close was forced to fly to the ground.

"A short time after landing I a

As I narrated, approaching me," he said. "He was pointing a .45-caliber pistol at me as anything like it—one of those old-fashioned pistols seen in castles. I walked toward him, and started cursing an average I could. It worked well. The average German soldier is accustomed having his orders shouted at him. He was certainly shouting. He dropped the pistol and came forward, mouthed. But suddenly I noticed the clothes and the double eagle on the buttons. Then another came on horse, the most magnificent black charger I have ever seen." He was a German military policeman, and the scales fell from my eyes immediately.

"When I was captured arrangements were being made by a squadron to drop on Prince Rupert a larger bomb than had ever been dropped. This, strange as it may seem, was known to the German staff officer who examined me and he said that arrangements had been made to give our flyers warm reception. Well, I got information back to the squadron writing a postcard to my mother saying: 'Please tell that the evil habits has changed his mind.'"

He told of the conditions in a series of camps in which he was confined, referring especially to Strohau, which had formerly been used as a punishment centre for Russian prisoners. It was a camp totally lacking in sanitation, with a madman for a commandant and a reward for bayoneting prisoners.

With two other officers he escaped from this camp on a dark, windy rainy night. After three nights he was recaptured and sent to Posen. He was recognized as one of the worst camps in Germany. He was captured at the point of a shoelace in the hands of a German farmer following discovery by his wife.

Postmiden: was commanded by Charles Niemeyer, "Milwaukee Bill," who, the lieutenant believed, will be one of the first of the German officers to be demanded by the allies when the day of reckoning comes. Niemeyer lost no chance to be consulting to the prisoners, and for a long time refused to allow them to sit up shower baths for their use because he wanted them as kennels for his dogs, which continued to grow.

So bad were conditions that it was decided an attempt must be made to get news to England, so the prisoners started to tunnel to freedom. Under trying conditions they tunneled for nine months, and were successful in securing the escape of 23 officers (he was not present), ten of whom crossed the frontier to safety. They dug from an unusual cellar to the prison through 60 yards of earth using crude air tubes of tin to keep the workers alive.

Lieut. Robinson escaped from a temporary camp. He stocked up with essentials, in the hope of being able to jump from the train on a journey which he knew would pass along the frontier. As he was suspected, he was searched for an hour before being allowed to board the train. Yet in spite of that hour's search, he took with him two compasses, a map, a flashlight, some forbidden German money and a civilian cap. He didn't expect a change to his "train" until the evening of his arrival at the next camp. Lieut. Robinson, with a German name Milne, made their escape over a high retaining wall while a third officer detained the German guard with an argument of the value of Zeppelin air raids.

The HOT SPOT Chalmers is the One Car of the Day

THE great Canadian public, never fooled for long, is beginning to realize that Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world. Sales are climbing fast. From coast to coast the movement is toward Chalmers.

The answer is "Hot Spot." For this simple but really magnificent device does a trick in the use of gas that is almost beyond belief.

It "smashes up" raw gas, "pulverizes" it, makes it "fine as dust," so that you can get every last bit of power out of gas.

Then the great Ram's-horn rushes it gently but quickly through "easy air bends" to the cylinders, and what is the result?

Not only high power from a low-grade gas, but an even, soft flow of power that rests your nerves, saves your tires, and gives you a new and rare delight in driving.

Please don't miss this present day Chalmers. It's the one car of the day.

The logo is a circular emblem. It features a large, stylized letter 'C' in the center. Inside the 'C' is a smaller, solid black circle. The words 'CHALMERS MOTOR CAR COMPANY' are written in a circular border around the central 'C'.

Bolshevik—Beasts
Says Canadian Girl

Conditions in Russia under the Red Terror as experienced by a Canadian girl are given in the Vancouver Daily Province in the report of an interview with Miss Gertrude Nicol, who has frequently visited relatives in this city. Says the Province:

"Bolshevik terrorism as it has been recorded outside of Russia is not so exaggerated in the slightest. I believe indeed that the worst has not been told."

she says Miss Gertrude Nicol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nicol, 1007 Point Grey Road, who is back in Vancouver after a seven years' experience of Europe from within, the last few years of which were spent in Russia. Miss Nicol went to Europe for personal educational purposes, little thinking that she should return as a witness to a spectacle of Russia's sadistic and would have run the gauntlet of British soldiers as a Russian Red Guard, and the risk of being shot if she was caught as a spy.

The Bolsheviks are "beasts," she declared, "but let it be understood that it was the tyrannical, the oppressive and the misgovernment from which the people of Russia suffered that has made them beasts now that they wield the power."

"It would be difficult for anyone who has not lived in Russia to grasp just what living conditions were under the old imperial and bureaucratic regime. I recall in the early stages of the way when I was working as a nurse, one of the prisons was behind of that the losses in one of the battles had been tremendous."

"In addition to all of this, the difference and dissension the matter by saying, 'We have lots more of that rubbish to spare.'"

In the hospitals, said Miss Nicol, the wounded and dying were neglected not from want of nurses to serve them, but from lack of comfort which the then government made no effort to send.

Welcomed Revolution

Asked as to her own opinions, Nicol informed that the revolution had succeeded, Miss Nicol quite frankly said she was elated for the new that a nation was freeing itself from the bonds which had for centuries held it in servitude. But not many days passed ere she wondered whether the remedy was going to be worse than the disease.

Miss Nicol was not in the area which was badly affected by Bolshevism, but, in title, was on the fringe of it, and was thus in a good position to study it as an onlooker rather than as a participant.

daughter was enabled to bring her included in these a handsome piece of silver filigree and most beautiful Russian tapestry. The beautiful blouse on Point Grey road was visited yesterday by many friends who came to congratulate Miss Nicol on her escape from Russia and on the fine picture she rendered the Red Cross in that country. Miss Nicol was awarded the Russian decoration for distinguished service, the Order of Anna, and was also recommended for a bar to this medal. She has also been recommended for admission to the Order of the British Empire.

Eyes Reports True

After reading the reported social realist of women, Miss Nicol declared that it was only too true in certain areas and that 100 Bolsheviks had been known for their father with their social doctrine and in one place of which she had knowledge, all children after they had attained their third year were taken from their parents and placed in a state institution to be brought up under direct state control.

"In one month," said Miss Nicol, "fewer than 2000 of these infants perished. Those who survived were returned to their parents, but their education was abandoned."

In leaving Title for her homecoming trip, which was via Constantinople, Miss Nicol travelled for two and a half days on the open deck of a German mail transport and her nationality was a matter of conjecture among some members of the German crew who divided among themselves that she was a German nationalist, a member of a German family which had emigrated to Russia many years previously.

At Sebastopol, an Englishman, who was a Russian agent, caused disaster when he saw forward among a group of German officials toward Miss Nicol and she was taken to a room and held there until she was released. "Why you are English," she was told.

Miss Nicol merely replied, "I am a Russian Red Cross nurse," and pursued the conversation no further. At Sebastopol Miss Nicol spent a week at the fortress in quarantine and it was a week of peril for her. Her nationality was established also, might easily have been classed as a spy and have been given the extreme penalty which the Germans used to give to British women during the war. She is a gifted linguist, speaking both German and Russian and she gives her in good stead as many occasions. Miss Nicol is displaying some treasures from the East, which her

By
 B. HARRIS-BURLAND

"Well, look here," I answered, only too anxious to get rid of him and upon the case, "if it is from Dr. Silex, and contains any news of the expedition I will give you the 500. If it is nothing of interest to me, I will give you ten pounds for your trouble."

"Very good, sir,"
 "Call again tomorrow," I said "about twelve o'clock. Good-night."
 "Goodnight, sir," he replied, and left the room. When he had gone, I rang the bell and again examined the metal cabinet. It appeared to me to be in two pieces, one fitting on the other like the lid of a box. I both addressed together in the middle. When the footman entered, I told him to bring some files, a file and a hammer.

"In a few minutes he returned. And then I set to work to crack this nut and to extricate the kernel. It was hard work, and when at last I managed to loosen one piece from the other, the clock was striking twelve. Trembling with excitement, I drew out the contents, a hard little cylinder wrapped in oiled silk. I quickly unwrapped it, and lo! there it was, a small, round, black, and shiny object, like a piece of metal, but much smaller, and much more like a piece of wood.

"The following is the narrative, brief as it was, of the events that had happened since I last saw you. Condensed, without reverting to matters which happened some time before I left England.
 On the 13th of June, 1898, I had good reason to remember the date."

CHAPTER I
 I cannot give you any clear and complete account of the events that have happened since I last saw you. Condensed, without reverting to matters which happened some time before I left England.

On the 13th of June, 1898, I had good reason to remember the date."

logues, and opened the only letter, a square envelope of very thick paper, addressed in a large angular handwriting.

But as I read the contents I gave a sudden exclamation of surprise, and my hands trembled with excitement. I read the letter again and again, peering up and down the room with rapid strides. A poor man who had just come into a great inheritance could scarcely have shown a greater joy. In one moment I had been lifted from the depths of despair to the bright heights of delight. The letter ran as follows:

"Beloved Sir,
 "Dear Sir, I saw in last night's paper that Professor Bull had secured a copy of the Manx article, printed by Gutenberg and Faust, making the right copy known to exist in the world."

"The paper was sent to state the whereabouts of the known copies, and offered an opinion that all were would be discovered, as for over two hundred years the value of the book had been almost universally known, and collectors had searched the world for it. In the writer of the article is mistaken. I have a copy in my possession, and am open to no offer for far less than I will, however, sell it to you at an entirely reasonable price, if you will do me a favor which will cost you nothing but a little personal exertion on my behalf."

"If you will make your way to Peckham Square, Notting Hill, W. you will have no difficulty in finding my residence. For some reason or other, it is in the centre of a dense and the doctor, I shall be in tomorrow between three and seven."

"I am
 "Your obedient servant, J. H. BULL"

I went to a table and unfolded a large map of London. After a considerable search and many references to the index, I found Peckham Square. It was in the centre of a dense and crowded street, and appeared to have only one entrance. As the writer of the letter said, there was no other square to be found in the neighborhood. I was very anxious to see the index. This did not get me as far as I wished, for the London map was very defective, especially in the outlying and crowded districts. I found the name and rang the bell. When the footman entered, I told him to take me to the house. Then I went to a writing table, unlocked the drawers, and taking out a cheque book placed it in my pocket. In a private or two the man returned and said that he was at the door. "I shall not be in till dinner time," I said, and I got into the room. "Professor Bullip calls, sir, I am sorry to have missed him, but I have an important engagement. Tell the man to wait in the Public Square, Notting Hill, W."

"Never mind of a plan, sir," I said, and I got into the room. "I shall not be in till dinner time," I said, and I got into the room. "Professor Bullip calls, sir, I am sorry to have missed him, but I have an important engagement. Tell the man to wait in the Public Square, Notting Hill, W."

"I have found it harder to believe that this drive to Peckham Square was but the first step to the fulfilment of a journey which would take up two years of my life."

CANADIAN

Y.M.C.A.

"I believe," said Lieut.-General Sir Arthur Currie one day in March, 1918, "while the fate of the world was trembling in the balance, that the authorities should recognize the extremely valuable factor the Y.M.C.A. is in winning battles, and I think you ought to have the personnel and equipment necessary to carry on your work. . . . I do not see how, with the men and materials you have, you can do more than you are doing. But if you can, do so. We need it and appreciate it."

Every public institution is rightfully subject to criticism. The Young Men's Christian Association is no exception. The very magnitude of the Y.M.C.A.'s work for the soldiers brought it under the white light of criticism. But its record of four and a half years has not been successfully assailed.

For every dollar of gross profits made in Y.M.C.A. canteens it was necessary to raise a dollar and a half by public subscription to meet the total expenses of the Overseas Services. It will be seen therefore, that absolutely all profits were absorbed in the cost of the soldiers.

The policy of the Y.M.C.A. in its war work was primarily free service, not free supplies, but nevertheless, since December 31, 1916, soldiers in the Canadian Corps are in France, Belgium and Germany were supplied tea, coffee, cocoa, orangeade and lemonade at the "V" free. Also cigarettes, chocolate, biscuits, etc. were given free to walking wounded, stretcher bearers, and working parties in cases of emergency. In addition 5% of the sales was distributed among units in the war zone to be spent on extra rations, comforts, etc. for the men. Supplies and cash given away during 1918 amounted to $299,650.28.

The prices charged in the Y.M.C.A. canteens were fixed by the British War Office and were the same as those charged throughout the British Army. These prices were fixed for the protection of the soldiers, and were from 50% to 100% lower than prevailing prices in overseas civilian stores. They were also as low or lower than retail prices in Canada.

Remember these facts when Y.M.C.A. canvassers wait upon you for your subscription to the Red Triangles to-day. The Y.M.C.A. Service to soldiers will be maintained until Demobilization is complete—if you will be generous to-day.

Help the Y.M.C.A.'s work for Canada's returning soldiers. Help the Y.M.C.A. extend Red Triangle Service to our industrial workers, and to men and boys of rural Canada.

Help the Y.M.C.A.'s extension of the work for Canada's 300,000 "teen-age boys. Help the Y.M.C.A. construct the men who will reconstruct Canada.

The Spirit of Sunlight

All over the land the sun calls forth beauty, cleanliness, health and the renewing of youth. So with Sunlight Soap in the home. It redeems everything washable from the thrall of dirt. Restores beauty and brings out old colors. It cleanses with a sure, gentleness that only the purest of soaps could accomplish.

Sunlight Soap

Its mission—as thousands of homes know—is to wash clothes, from the finest to the coarsest, without rubbing or old-time labour and discomfort. Also to wash woodwork, linoleum, dishes, utensils, etc., spotlessly clean with only a little soap. All this because it is absolutely pure.

The spirit of Sunlight is purity and cleanliness.

No one can buy better Soap.

SIN!!

Today when the fault is committed WOMAN hides herself—MAN walks proudly erect. So contrast for MAN—so bitter for WOMAN!

BLANCHE SWEET in Major Rupert Hughes' astounding story, THE UNPARDONABLE SIN

A powerful story of the brutality and injustice of man toward woman.

The late Theodore Roosevelt was 100 per cent. right—"The Unpardonable Sin" is a very strong story. It teaches just the lesson our people should learn.

Stomach Troubles Are Due to Acidity

Tells Baby, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, nervousness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probability cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach.

The trouble lies entirely in the excess of secretion of gastric acid.

To sleep or prevent the souring of the food contents of the stomach and to soothe the acid, and make it bland and harmless a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda, a good and effective corrector of acid stomachs, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or when ever gas, nervousness or acidity is felt. This soothes the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy for use.

An antacid, such as bicarbonate of soda, which can be obtained from our druggists in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial stimulants. Magnesia, which is in several forms, can be taken to act for and take the only illustrated Magnesia which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

Germany Must Accept Allied Peace Terms

BERLIN, May 11.—Official circles in Berlin hinted the terms of peace yesterday, and a lengthy session of the Cabinet followed, at which the action Germany is to take was discussed. It was concluded in some quarters that Count Von Brockhoff-Bastan would refuse to sign the peace treaty and accept, but the opinion is general that Germany must accept, since she is helpless.

The resignation of the Foreign Minister would only delay a withdrawal of the action, for if the Cabinet left office with his independence, it is believed, would surely take up their position, and their first act would be to accept the terms.

NOTHING OVER 15 CENTS IN THIS STORE

FORTY-FIVE years ago Frank Woolworth, a poor farmer's boy of nineteen years, came to town with his father on a load of potatoes, struck a job in a store in Watertown, N.Y., where he worked for three months at $3.50 per week. At the end of two and one-half years he was earning $6.50 per week, and felt that with that income he was in position to marry Jennie Creighton of Picton, Ontario, Canada.

Two years later, with a wife and baby on his hands, he was able to save money on a salary of $10.00 per week, and to open his first five-cent store in Utica, N.Y., in the Spring of 1879, just forty years ago this month.

From that beginning, after wrestling with a thousand difficulties that might have sent back to the farm one less determined, he worked up to the modern Woolworth Store as you know it to-day. His business has grown in forty years to a total of 1063 Woolworth Stores, incidentally also the largest and tallest building in the world, with 57 floors for offices; costing 14 million dollars.

The hundreds of men who compose the present organization of F. W. Woolworth Co., all entered the service as boys at a salary of $10.00 and less per week. This, to-day, comprises the largest and strongest retail organization in the world.

The 94 stores in Canada and 77 stores in England are benefitting by the wonderful purchasing power of over one thousand stores, which enables them to offer volumes unequalled by any mercantile firm in the world.

Don't Spoil Your Hair

By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be sure what you use. Don't use popular shampoos of anything else, that contain too much alkali for this hair. It is injurious, as it drives the scalp dry, makes the hair brittle, and causes itching. The first thing to use is just plain water. It is pure and entirely harmless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else at all places. You can get this at any drug store, and a few cents will last the whole family for months.

Simply comb the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and raises out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

St. Thomas Church Vestry Meeting

The adjourned Easter vestry meeting was held in St. Thomas Church House on Monday May 13th at 8 o'clock. There was an unusually large attendance which almost filled the sanctuary. The proceedings were opened by devotional exercises by the rector, Rev. Archibald (Boyd's) who presided at the meeting. The first order of business was the unanimous passing of a memorial and petition to the Executive Committee and Synod of the Diocese of Ontario, which reads as follows:

To the Executive Committee and Synod of the Diocese of Ontario:

We, the members of the vestry of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, assembled at our annual vestry meeting do respectfully memorialize and petition the Executive Committee and Synod of the Diocese as follows:

That whereas in the Canon of the Diocese there are incorporated "two Acts, one of 1866 (Can.), and another of 1878 (Ord.), dealing with the Rectories and their incomes, and that, in the second of these, the Rectory of Belleville is classified as a "Town Rectory" and with a Town Rectory's Inclosure.

And, whereas, at that time (1878) Belleville was an incorporated town, and was known as a "City Rectory," the claim being rejected in this "Prima Facie" consideration of the said Act of 1878, and the fact that Belleville was at that time, only an incorporated town, though long prior to that time, and much later, with- out deriving anything like two thousand dollars a year for many years of its incumbency, that it would take many years to repay him for what he has done in conserving the resources of the Rectory.

The audited accounts of the vestry were presented by the People's Wardens and showed a total income for the year from all sources of $4,779.22, the largest in the history of the parish. All the various organizations reported successful operations during the year, with healthy financial balances. The rector nominated Ralph H. Harper as Rector's Warden and the vestry elected unanimously Mr. D. B. D.

Mr. F. Jennings as People's Warden. A strong financial committee and a committee of advisors were also nominated and appointed.

Mr. Chas. Bickley was elected vestry clerk, and Mr. J. D. Clarke, and Mr. A. W. Rowland, auditors.

At the congregational meeting which followed the close of the vestry meeting, Mr. J. A. Kerr was appointed Lay Delegate to the Diocesan Synod for the term of three years. The meeting was closed with the benediction by the rector.

Prof. Whalley was granted a three months' leave of absence to visit his household, his place being taken by another professional organist.

Teachers Pay in Nova Scotia

PUBLIC Interest requires that teaching should be made attractive and honorable profession. This can be done only by making it remunerative and stimulating. It is, therefore, appropriate measure in any case at present. Most teachers, most, at least, are paid. DUNLOP BICYCLE TIRES

MADE BY EXCLUSIVE PROCESS or 25 Years

"Exclusive Process!"

—magic words when applied to Bicycle Tires, because the reference is to the method of making "Dunlop," the original tire.

That Exclusive Process ensures continuity in the quality, uniformity in the construction, and economy in the service.

DUNLOP TIRE & RUBBER GOODS CO., LIMITED

Briscoe

Efficiency with Economy

The efficiency of the Briscoe Motor has been demonstrated in several ten-day, non-stop test runs, in one of which a record of over 29 miles to the gallon was established.

In less spectacular fashion the Briscoe is proving its capability by year-in, year-out service, on all sorts of roads and under all sorts of conditions.

The experienced motorist, seeking "efficiency with economy," knows that for motoring satisfaction one must always look beyond the external features. And so it is that this new model—thing of beauty, though it is—deserves for its popularity on that remarkable motor and its ability to convert a small quantity of gasoline into a tremendous amount of power.

The prices (B.C. Briscoe) are subject to tax: Special Touring, $1,350; Standard Touring, $1,225.

MAJOR GENERAL WILSON PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE C.P.R.

The following extract of an interview with Major-General Wilson, C.M.G., G.G.C., 4th Military District, appeared in the Montreal Gazette of Saturday, April 26th, and has been issued to all officers and employees under the signature of Mr. A. D. MacTavish, Vice-President of Eastern Lines:

"While all those engaged in the transportation of troops deserve commendation in this connection, I think special tribute should be paid to the C. P. R., which has to its credit a record of punctuality, service and efficiency in the handling of troop trains which may truly be described as amazing. It is so often the last lap in the race that counts, and the last lap provided by the C. P. R. has left a feeling of satisfaction in the minds of the men that has been of untold benefit.

Take, for instance, the record of train arrivals since February 2nd, and, covering two months of difficult transportation weather, in spite of all the uncertainties of blizzards and snowstorms, out of 100 troop trains handled by the C. P. R. in that period, only nine did not arrive on time—and of these nine the delays were, in several cases, due to delays not on the C. P. R., but on connecting lines. Even when the trains have been delivered late to the C. P. R. at a junction point, as, for instance, the train carrying the 14th Regiment, that time has been made up so as to bring the train into the depot on the second.

"The train crews on the C. P. R. are evidently carrying out the spirit of the admirable circular issued by Vice-President A. D. MacTavish, asking employees to handle trains with returning soldiers as if they were their own relatives, and giving instructions that troop trains should have the right of way and first claim on any locomotive in the case of a breakdown. That spirit runs right through the C. P. R. service—even the red caps at the depots refusing tips from the Montreal ladies serving the wives and children who come with the soldiers from the Old Country. The commissariat arrangements have been so well handled that there has not been a solitary complaint; indeed, every incoming train produces an unalloyed testimonial from the officers in charge as to the excellence of the food."

"Another point on which the C. P. R. deserves the thanks not only of the military, but also of the public, is the efficiency and celerity of its telegraphic service, which has enabled us to keep track of every troop movement the moment a train was delivered to C. P. R. lines. Only those who have to do with troop movements realize what a relief such a service is, and the C. P. R. certainly has been perfect in its telegraphic arrangements.

"It is very gratifying indeed to find the efforts which have been made by all Departments on all Districts to recommend and in such complimentary terms by the 11,223 of the Montreal Military District, and I am sure that all those who were concerned in handling the trains and passengers will appreciate the compliment and will make every effort to continue to deserve the excellent reputation enjoyed up to now."

McCloughlin Tells Of Dodging Police

Almost Lost Hope When Vera De Lavele Was Arrested.

TORONTO, May 13.—Frank McCloughlin, the condemned murderer, has told the story of his tactics in dodging the police of Detective Harry Cronin. His story reveals the fact that the whole period of liberty was a close chase by the police, which ended in his capture at the house of Mrs. J. B. Hart, near River and Adelaide.

Five times in three days of the time he was hiding on Bathurst Street, he told Detective Cronin, he had seen the detective in the vicinity of the house. It was this fact, which determined him to make a hold his for final liberty in travelling out of the center as a lie, a scheme which was forestalled by only twenty-four hours.

McCloughlin's first night of freedom was spent in the old British War League building, now empty, situated at the corner of Spadina and Front streets.

On the second night, he hid in the building after a night's rest he casually called a night over the door, hearing that the police were about to enter the building during his absence would knock him out.

He then told his refuge had been discovered. He then told his refuge had been discovered. He then told his refuge had been discovered.

BRITAIN'S DEBT TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—"A complete and comprehensive settlement of the claims between Great Britain and the United States growing out of the military operations has been reached by the American liquidation commission. Secretary of War Baker announced that under the settlement the British Government would pay the United States $35,500,000 as a reduced final adjustment. The adjustment of the British claims is the first to be reached by the American liquidation commission. The chief debts owed by this country to Great Britain, it was explained, included costs of transporting troops and supplies, the cost of maintaining the troops, the cost of food, clothing and materials, including hundreds of thousands of uniforms, purchased for the use of the American expeditionary forces, and the expenses of American troops trained in England. These expenses, subtracted from the $100 million loan, would leave a balance owed, by Great Britain to the United States for armaments, munitions, food and other necessities. Under the act, the United States Government of $15,500,000.

Results to the Credit of War Savings Campaigns

It would be a mistake to think that because a War Savings Stamp costs only $4 and a few cents, and a Thrift Stamp costs but 25 cents that, therefore, the War Savings campaigns do not amount to much.

In the United Kingdom about $250,000,000 worth of War Savings Certificates have been sold during the last three years and the movement is being continued as a permanent peace effort.

In the United States over $1,000,000,000 worth of War Savings and Thrift Stamps have been sold during the last seventeen months. So as money raising efforts these campaigns are important.

But perhaps the chief benefit to be seen in the creating of an entirely new class of investors in Government securities. At the outbreak of war there were in Great Britain only 345,000 holders of Government securities; now there are over 18,000,000 such. In the United States the number has been increased from 300,000 to possibly between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000. This change has been brought about through the National War Bond and War Savings campaign.

At the outbreak of war the number of people in this country who had invested in Dominion Government securities numbered only a few thousand. Now they will exceed 1,000,000. The War Savings campaign is adding thousands to this number, because it practically enables anyone with $4 to buy a Dominion Government bond.

RETRIBUTION.

By the decision of Europe, Napoleon was banished, not for specific acts brought home to him by legal process, but as a penance to the peace of the world; and the ex-Kaiser is to be ungranted, not for particular deeds or acts in the conduct of the war, but for precipitating the conflict in defiance of all international law which he scornfully said did not exist, as far as Germany was concerned. The British electorate demanded that the ex-Kaiser and all who had been guilty of the atrocities which, during the progress of the war, shocked the conscience of mankind, should be brought to book. Lloyd George gave that solemn promise, which now seems about to be implemented. The dispatch says that demand has been made upon Holland for the extradition of the ex-Kaiser and that the demand is to be complied with at the proper moment. Holland played a dubious part in the war. Her people were obviously pro-Germans, as was possibly their attention to the British and other refugees; but the Court was obviously German in its sympathies. The Queen is married to a German prince, which had its weight; but the German leader, from the ex-Kaiser down, had sent their money and valuables to Holland in advance of possible need; and it behooved the latter to afford prudent blindness to the illegal and unbecoming attacks which the German submarine boats made upon Holland's unprotected shipping.

The solemn arraignment of the ex-Kaiser will constitute memorable confirmation of the truth that wrongdoing, however, it may appear to flourish, is bound, by the laws of God and man, to suffer. There will be no thought of personal or national vengeance in relation to the trial of the Kaiser. On the contrary, every effort will be made to dissociate the personal equation, and to show the world, as an example to be remembered, that the sanctities of life, the sanctuaries of order, decency, and righteousness in the collective life of the world, cannot be brutally invaded with impunity. Every circumstance of solemnity and impressiveness will give to the trial that emphasis and meaning which will declare, in the face of the world, that crime will always, sooner or later, bring its own punishment, and in that sense, the trial will be of inevitable globe in the lesson it is calculated to teach.

"GETTING THE JUMP" ON THE COMMON HOUSE FLY.

Before we know if fly time will be again upon us and it is reasonable to discuss in what way the fly is related to disease. There have been all sorts of hysterical statements and based on them a number of dramatic movements like the fly-swarming campaigns. The time to treat the fly is now—before it is hatched—by cleaning up the places where it is possible for the insect to breed! The story of the transmission of disease by the fly is told by Dr. Ernest A. Sweet in a somewhat earlier Public Health Review in which he outlined the relationships of the fly to the distribution of disease. In a careless locality, for example, a single fly may be the agent for the development of typhoid fever.

Nearly all flies breed in organic filth, and some of the favorite materials for the purpose are stable manure, decaying vegetables, garbage and its dirty places. The cycle of life is but a few days and the insects are prolific, and a favorite place like the barnyard or the outhouse. They make their entry into all rooms that are not screened against them, and carry with them the filth from which they come or the more dangerous disease germs that they have picked up somewhere under our very loose customs in caring for or disposing of infectious matter. Some diseases—the African sleeping sickness, for example—are due entirely in their distribution to the activity of a biting fly.

If we can begin now and remove the filth in which flies breed and see to it that other accumulations of filth are removed before the flies have laid their eggs, the work will have been begun at the right end. The door will be closed while the horse is still in the stable. But in a fortnight it will be too late, for the flies will then be abroad, the gamboing of prevention can be undertaken only in part, and measures of cure will be necessary. The cure lies in the screen; in screening possible breeding places and in screening the house.—Boston Evening Transcript.

CRISP COMMENT

Woman of 79 Loved Man Under Thirty
She Gave Him $400,000 Bet
Later Charges Him With False Pretences.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Although Mrs. Victoria McKenna is seventy-nine years old, she was desperately in love with her foster son, Richard H. Lane, nearly half a century ago, her father, and it was because of her feelings for the young man that she gave him nearly $400,000, for the terms of which she had brought suit. Lane, who was then twenty-one, was a student at the law, and the relations between the aged woman and her husband were such that at one time a separation agreement was entered into and they lived apart. Eight months later, however, she got tired and made up and now making their home at No. 41 Riverside Drive.

Young and abominably pretty, Mrs. Lane took the stand for her husband before Justice Varnum M. Thayer in a jury in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court and testified that the relations between the aged woman and her husband were such that at one time a separation agreement was entered into and they lived apart. Eight months later, however, she got tired and made up and now making their home at No. 41 Riverside Drive.

Mrs. McKenna is the complainant against Lane in this particular action, charging him with having obtained $40,000 from her under false pretences. In getting the other large amounts from her, Mrs. McKenna testified that Lane used spiritualistic methods.

After filling of business relations her husband had with Mrs. McKenna, Mrs. Lane was told by her husband's counsel whether Mr. McKenna was fond of her husband. "Mrs. McKenna, your husband, present me with a letter from her dear love, eyes," Mrs. McKenna was very much in love with Richard—that is why she gave him all that money."

OLEO WILL STAY FOR ANOTHER YEAR

OTTAWA, May 15.—The Government proposes to bring in legislation authorizing for another year the manufacture, importation and the sale of oleomargarine. Many petitions have been presented, while many petitions to keep of the restrictions have come from consumers. In view of the high price of butter it is justifiable to put back the law for a year.

"Cause the only country where oleo is made is a matter of temporary practice."

"What chance is there of getting better so long as this goes on?"

"None. Nerve force is being exhausted nearly twenty-four hours of every day, and there is no rest and sleep in which to replenish the waste."

"One thing sure I cannot stand it much longer, for I know that every week—yes, every day—I am more restless and nervous, and less able to stand the strain of my day's work."

"I suppose the doctor could give me something to make me sleep, but I don't want to get into any more trouble and want something to build up strength rather than to tear down the tissues of the body."

"One thing sure I shall not spend another sleepless night before I begin using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I expect it will take a little time to get my nerves right, but I shall get half a dozen boxes and give it a try out. Something seems to tell me that I shall not be disappointed."

KINGSTON, May 16.—Mayor H. W. Newman appeared in a court this morning—this of "lunar" pollution, but he began, he had the sanction of the Ontario Liquor Board to do so. The occasion was the celebration of a centennial liquor to local charitable institutions. For some years it has been the custom to flush the city sewers with the "strong stuff," had the civic authorities got the permission of the Ontario Liquor Board to have the liquor used in the hospitals and charitable institutions. The liquor was kept at police station and Inspector McCormick and Chief of Police Smith, loaded up the Mayor's auto and the Warden made the rounds of the hospitals and other worthy institutions, and distributed the liquor.

What Do You Think RE-CREATE Means?

Thomas A. Edison set himself the task of making a reproducer that would give the tone to every sound, wave, and the human quality in a selection, just as some for it be some great artist. When he finally developed the instrument, he said to himself, he could be RE-CREATED the music, and that is what it means when he is recording what he hears.

Highway of the Great Divide the early condition of what will be the most wonderful automobile road in Canada, opening up an Alpine region of extraordinary beauty. It will be possible to motor from Calgary to Thunderbolt between points and connect through a hundred miles of the most glorious scenery in North America. A good automobile road runs north to Port St. Louis and Cranbrook, and from Cranbrook there are excellent roads to Spokane, or eastward through the Crow's Nest Pass, and back to Calgary. The Good Roads Association of Alberta is enthusiastic over the prospect as this will mean the advent of many tourists from all over America. The new road will also be of great benefit to the Upper Columbia Valley which has many attractions for settlers on account of the fertility of the soil and available for mixed farming. This valley is served by the Kootenay Central Railway, a recently constructed branch of the Canadian Pacific.

Between itself, the rugged limestone in the Canadian Pacific, British and Lake Umbagog, the head waters of the great Columbia River. Was an Alpine ridge of spectacular beauty, forming part of the Great Divide. This ridge is penetrated by two comparatively easy passes, the Simpson, and the Victory, which lead into the Valley of the Kootenay River, a region abounding in game on account of its being well south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Between the Kootenay River and the Columbia River is a small strip of mountains through which the Sinclair Pass and Carapac provide an easy road. When the Great surveys were made for an automobile road between itself and Woodmenore it was planned to use the Simpson Pass, named after Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, who made this crossing in 1811. But the route over the Victory was found to be easier and as the mountains were beautiful, and picturesque of the Highway of the Great Divide was constructed from Simpson's Pass to the north of the Great Divide. At the same time the road from Woodmenore through the Sinclair Canyon was a long and difficult task. At the outbreak of war a gap of only thirty miles separated the two roads. We put an end to construction, and a great natural barrier, several miles of the western end, so that the road would be a true highway. Now, however, the Dominion Government has had the Simpson Pass, which the British Government has been selected to finish the work, in the way there is every prospect

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press Limited
TORONTO, May 19.—A special despatch wired here today by a readboard report declares that three thousand strikers met on Saturday night and practically decided a Soviet Government to administer the affairs in that city. This new Government, it is said, was instituted with the strikers and is now practically in control. The leading spirit in it seems to be Rev. W. M. Evans, former Methodist clergyman, and now editor of the Labor News.

OTTAWA, May 19.—Word received by the Minister of Labor from Winnipeg today is that the city is still quiet and the threatened clash between the authorities and strikers which was forecasted in a message received at the department last night, did not materialize. The Cabinet Council held a meeting at noon, when the situation was discussed. Senator Robertson would not say whether the Government had any proposition for a settlement.

It is stated that Editor Evans is generally recognized as the brain center of the present movement. He declared that the new form of Government would shortly reconstitute all cities of Canada and that he would be invited to administer it. The strikers are now in the city and the Soviet Government is in the Labor Temple just a short distance from the City Hall. A committee of one thousand is also working present.

Winnipeg, Wis. News, May 19.—President Hiram of Brandon Trades Council announced at noon today that he had a letter from the strikers of the city of Brandon, Minn., stating that they would be declared tomorrow at three o'clock. The strikers are now in the city and the Soviet Government is in the Labor Temple just a short distance from the City Hall. A committee of one thousand is also working present.

MARGARET ANGLIN.

AT GRIFFIN'S All theatrical attention is just now focused on the engagement of Margaret Anglin at Griffin's next Wednesday night May 21st. Miss Anglin comes here with his highly entertaining comedy "Billeted" with which she delighted New York and Chicago spectators for extended runs. To play Billeted is a farcical manner with the domestic entanglements of an English woman who joins the society for the entertainment of lower order diers on a furlough. In the central character Miss Anglin has registered an emphatic success, and has again demonstrated that while she has won her chief recognition in emotional parts, she is equally at home in characters that demand the vivacity and sparkle of high comedy. In his review of "Billeted" in New York life, the well known critic, James McNeill White, writes "It is a comedy that is so full of life and so full of the human, whatever, careless, drollness that it will be seen here with his original New York Company. Miss Anglin is coming to Belleville under a $1000 contract for a new picture. "The Marys" fine, which will be shown at the Palace tonight to Saturday, matinee only. The drawing room is a replica of Frank Gordon's drawing room on that illustrious Lakewood estate.

The furniture was made especially for the set, and the palatial tapestries, rugs, and bric-a-brac are worth a small fortune. The bedroom set is done in neutral color canvas with a narrow line of light green wood.

The wall lights are covered with shades of neutral colors, the bed, dresser fittings and rug contrast strikingly with the color scheme. Several interior decorators visited the studios to look at the sets which they had heard were the most beautiful pieces of artistic work that have yet been shown in the studios. Copies of rooms in the phase set in the Regis Hotel of New York are shown perfectly in the picture. Another remarkable set is the rustic stable, copies from Frank Gordon's stable at Lakewood.

Real marble floors were laid in the studio. Instead of the painted colors which used to satisfy the public. The stable was made of mahogany with marble columns; carved walls and stained glass windows contained the elaborate set. Miss Ferguson plays the part of a society woman, married to a man who is a society boy.

There is a society boy story and the situations are quite dramatic.

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

THE star of "The Heart of Humanity," Dorothy Phillips, which will be shown at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, matinee only, has had a long and varied career of continuous success on the screen and is competent, as few other moving picture players are competent, to convey her emotions on action before the camera.

"Of course," says Miss Phillips, "I have lost those roles which give opportunity for a full and bold delineation of character, for there I get the joy of creation. I am especially wrapped up in the portrayal of Mary Barton in Allen Hoblands new picture. There is thinking-rare mental action in each scene of 'The Heart of Humanity,' and since audiences feel it and welcome it as much as do the players, I have chosen those that my friends out front will like, like, like in their pictures, so much as I do."

Dr. Sex

By
B. HARRIS-BURLAND.

"I went to his side and took one of his great, trained hands in my own. The dying man scarcely seemed to notice the action, for he laid not turn his head."

"Mr. Silver," John said in a voice, "I am here—Dr. Silver." "I can turn his white face, and I shrouded as I looked into his dark and burning eyes."

"John Silver," John Silver," he said in a faint voice. "Who calls the Lord of Argos? Is that name? Who—then a sudden glimmer of recognition came into his face, and I felt a slight pressure on my fingers. 'Remember now,' he continued, 'you cannot pardon me. I was drinking. This is a sad business, Dr. Silver.'"

"My poor friend," I murmured, "I know what this means to you. Yet perhaps in a year's time many of us will be praying for rest."

"I wish to speak to you of that," he continued, "in about twenty minutes. This is no time for regrets—such is hard to do—just as one's hopes and ambitions are about to be realized. The hours are few. Will you respect the wishes of a dying man, Dr. Silver?"

"I will with all my heart," I answered.

"The expedition must leave," he murmured, "directly after my burial. There is no time to be lost. I wish my body to be buried. The ashes you will take with you. They must rest in the most sacred spot your reach. Promise me this."

"I swear it," I replied. "Then the Prince," he continued, "in no faint a voice that I could catch each of the words, 'I will be alone. Will you guard her—serve her faithfully—protect her from harm?'"

"With my life, if need be," I said fervently, and then stopped, astonished by the man's face. A great shadow was falling upon it, and the light seemed to be flickering in the eyes. Quickly I measured out some medicine and poured it between the white lips. He gave a deep sigh, and a faint flush of color came into his cheeks and died away again.

"Thank you, Dr. Silver," he said, "I shall die now—early—knowing all is your hands. I trust you. Perhaps in the future you will influence the destiny of a kingdom."

"Will you not tell me your secret?" I said gently. "It is to help of fatefully, I should have perfect knowledge."

"I did not, and yet," he whispered, "I am on my deathbed and have laid it in the palm of God. I have told the Princess that which she did not know before tonight. I have laid on her young shoulders a burden which none but the hero and the student of women could bear."

"You will need all your help. Before you have finished your career, she will benefit all the object I have in view, that I dare not tell you now. You are an honorable man, you would feel obliged to tell your companion. I will not wrangle you with this subject. You shall all know tonight, and choose whether you will proceed or turn back. It will all be in your own hands."

"Perhaps you are right," I replied. "And if the Princess knows—that is enough for me. We were both silent for more than a minute. He gripped my hand, and his eyes were moist more turned to the window."

"Turn down the lamp," he said suddenly, "and open the window. I would see the stars."

"It is a bitter night," I said.

"I do not matter," he replied, "unless you are afraid of the cold."

"You had turned the lamp down, yet, still there was only a faint flicker of light on the walls. Then I threw open the window, and the cold air came rushing into the apartment. It was a clear night. The moon was not yet up, and the white space of sky twinkled with points of light."

"I returned to the bedside, and once more grasped John Silver's hand."

"Now, then, this North," he said, "under those stars. My body is here, but my spirit has outstripped the bodies of all; it has passed the smoke of London and the shores of the great ocean, and is now in the eternal silence of freedom; it is now on the shores of the Great Frigate. Now it has reached the great waste of impenetrable and everlasting ice. It has landed in London."

"I looked through the window, and a strange thing happened to me. The white room began to melt and change into a wide vista of unbounded realms and mountains. The stars flashed up and flickered like stars of fire and there in the distance, at the boundary of a great plain of fire, stood the white walls and towers of a large city. But the distance was only monetary. I turned away my head and closed my eyes, and when I looked again, the stars were shining in the dark sky and the firelight was now mere flickering on the walls."

"Do you see it?" he said in a low voice.

"You are it through my eyes," he said, "Perchance one day you will see it with your own. Farewell, Dr. Silver, I would be alone with the Prince until the end comes. Farewell, my friends. Through you I hope to live again, and fulfill her destiny as my own."

"Farewell, John Silver," I said, still holding his hand. "If it is the will of God, I will do all you yourself would have done. I took your place by force for the sake of my own pride and too much strength. I will hold it now for your sake—and for hers."

"I closed this, cold, thin hand, and left the room. In the next apartment I found the Prince with his feet buried in her hands. The two doctors were seated in a far corner, and time as I entered. I returned to them."

"He desires to see this lady," I said in a low voice. "Is there absolutely no hope?"

"None," one of them said. "We can do nothing. We may keep him alive for a while by artificial means, but we cannot save him."

"Will you see him now?" I said. "Before she goes in?"

"Yes," they replied, and they both entered the bedroom, about the door behind them. Then I heard the sound of the window being shut. In ten minutes' time they returned.

"He wishes to see you, madam," said one of them. "Purely. 'There is no time to be lost. We will wait here till you call us. Give him the medicine when his strength fails. He has some from his seal and seal from the room. There were no tears on her face now. It was white and calm as death. She looked like the imperial and beautiful statue of her. The door closed behind her, and some there was silence, and then, by the ticking of the clock and the low whisper of the two doctors."

"For more than an hour we sat in the room and waited. Then we heard her cry. The door was suddenly flung open, and the Princess rushed into the room. 'Quick, quick,' she cried, 'the medicine is of no use. He will not speak.'"

"We hurried to the bedside, but the doctor's efforts were in vain. John Silver never spoke another word, and he died in a few hours."

"See What I Brought You This Time, Mary"

"WHAT IS IT?"

"Something to make you well."

"If only hope that it will for I have had a miserable week of it."

"In what way?"

"Oh, the same old headaches and sleeplessness. I do not think I ever suffered so much, for, besides the headaches, I had scintilla pains in the limbs."

"Well, I got talking to a man on the train. We noticed a sign on a billboard about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and he began to tell me his experience with this medicine."

"His wife was just like you have been and suffered terribly from nervous headaches. She had tried so many treatments that she had become very much discouraged."

"How long had she been that way?"

"Oh, for some years, but she was completely restored after using the Nerve Food for about two months."

"That seems quite a while."

"Yes, but you must remember how long she had been run down and that it takes time to restore worn-out nerve cells. He said they bought half a dozen boxes at first and before they were all used she had so improved that they felt sure they were on the right track."

"He told me about other similar cases and said that he used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food himself after he had had the 'flu' and it soon put him on his feet."

"Well, Jim, if sure of this cures me it will be the best present you ever brought me."

"It seems to me that it is worth trying, so I called at a drug store and bought half a dozen boxes."

"I am glad you did and I shall certainly give it a chance to help me."

In order to be sure of getting the genuine Dr. Chase's Nerve Food it is only necessary to see the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the box you buy. 50c a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Spending Service of Sir Robt. Borden

London Papers Unflinching in Their Praise of Canada's Premier.
LONDON, May 21.—The Daily Mail in an editorial says Sir Robert Borden will take with him the gratitude of the British people for the splendid service he has rendered at the Peace Conference. "We owe him so much that we shall find it difficult to do more than say that we cannot at the same time forget the great Dominion who spared him to us. Canada can look with unexampled pride on this part she shared, both in the war and peace, under his wise leadership." "The Times" says Sir Robert Borden retired at last personal costs to Robert Borden and the other Dominion Ministers came here on the last day of the Empire. "Everywhere the military side of Dominion participation in the war is recognized with pride; but how shall we account to the fact that the political country of military participation is still hidden from most of us. There are evident difficulties in the adaptation, of the Imperial Cabinet system to peace conditions, but we really must credit Sir Robert's blunt declaration that the British Empire is already a

Pope to Plead With Allies For Mercy to Huns

ROME, May 21.—The minor German Episcopate has addressed a petition to the Pope praying for his good offices to mitigate the conditions of peace which, in their judgment, it is impossible to "fudge." Pope Benedict, with a view to co-operating in the speedy reestablishment of a lasting and humanitarian peace throughout the world, has taken steps to communicate the petition to one of the most important delegations at the Peace Conference with the object of having the conditions imposed on Germany so modified as to make them acceptable.

Church Boys Out.

Pope Benedict told the faithful throughout the world that he would like to see the Catholic Church to take part in the proposed world conference. The Pope said that a "successor to St. Peter, the vicar of Christ has no greater desire than there should be but one fold and one shepherd." He added that the teaching and practice of the Catholic Church "regarding unity of the visible Church is well known to everyone and, therefore, it would not be possible for the Catholic Church to participate in the proposed conference."

The Pope explained that he is no less willing to disapprove of a part in the drafting of the terms of a League of Nations for the world, for the only reason is that which we share with the Dominions. The conference next year will be of immense importance."

Roll Under Pillow Taken as He Slept

Thorold Man Laces $400 While Daughter is Covered by Gun.

THOROLD, May 20.—Thorold has had two robbery-two nights in succession. On Friday night, for the second time within six months, Broad man's jewelry store, which is located in a store's throw from the police station, was entered and between two and three hundred dollars worth of goods taken. An entrance was gained by forcing a piano in between the front door and the ceiling and appearing the door open. It is believed that the thieves got away with about $400 worth. Some of this was found in a car which it became wrecked near St. Catharines.

On Saturday night, St. Catharines' North Welland street, was entered by means of a ladder to an upper bedroom window. His daughter was awakened by the noise, but was commanded to keep quiet, a revolver being pointed at her head. The thieves left $400 in cash from under Mr. Smith's pillow without disturbing him and made a clear getaway, leaving no trace behind.

Prohibitionists Are Pleased With Bill

OTTAWA, May 21.—The executive secretary of the Dominion Prohibition Committee states that the committee is well pleased with the form of the legislation as introduced. Canadian prohibitionists established a new record in favor of leaving social legislation as largely as possible in the hands of the provinces. If this principle is adhered to the form in which the proposed legislation is before the Dominion House is the strongest possible. The legislation protects provincial standards without the exercise of any coercive jurisdiction over those standards.

Departing Regent

After the visit to the Vatican, the delegation left this night.

"The delegation regrets that the Roman Catholic Church will not be represented in the world conference as substantially all the rest of Christendom has promised to cooperate. The preparations for the conference will proceed, and the delegation will continue its work until invitations are presented to those communities which have not yet been reached."

Holy War Danger Influences, Big 4

PARIS, May 20.—The Russian delegation is urging that the status be allowed to remain in Constantinople and are anxious that the United States accept the position as mandatory of that city, as well as Armenia. The danger of a Holy war is increased by the Russian delegation, which has been advised that radical changes are inevitable without more foreign troops at strategic points to steady the situation.

The inter-Allied Committee, organized to investigate the Armenian situation is still in Paris. The Council of Four is finding the partition of Turkey a difficult problem. While an agreement has been reached, it apparently will be necessary to make revisions, which are now under consideration.

The terms of the agreement have never been announced officially. It has been contemplated that the Sultan shall be expelled from Constantinople to Brusa, in Asia Minor, the eliminating Turkish influence and the hand of Islamism from Europe.

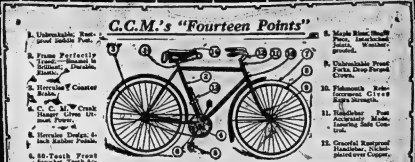

Turkish resistance to the landing of the Greeks at Smyrna last week has been met by the inter-Allied Committee, India and Egypt, despatches to demand the British Government to send a revision of the agreement.

One look of a trouble-maker is one who has travelled extensively and neither leaves nor writes about it.

Lots of men try to imagine they have poor health when they only say the matter with them is hazy.

The early completion of what will be the most wonderful automobile road in Canada, opening up an Alpine route from Vancouver to Kootenai, will be possible to motor from Calgary to Wenden between sunrise and sunset through a thousand miles of the most beautiful scenery in North America. A good automobile road runs south to Port Steele and Cranbrook and from Cranbrook, there are excellent trails to the Kootenai Park through the Crow's Nest Pass, and back to Calgary. The Good Roads Association of Alberta, is enthusiastic over the new road.

The advent of many tourists from all over America. The new road will also be of great benefit to the Upper Columbia Valley, where the ranchmen desire for settlers on account of the fertility of the soil and suitability for mixed farming. This valley is served by the Kootenai and the Rocky Mountain Express. The latter is a recently constructed branch of the Canadian Pacific. ■

Parents may be fined if children are out at night.

How many parents realize that the following amendment law passed by the Ontario Legislature May 1913 and does not need any by-law to be passed by a council, but should be enforced the same as the law against truancy or theft.

(1) - No child (under sixteen) shall loiter in any public place after dark unless he is accompanied by his parents or guardian or is in the company of the parent or guardian to accompany such child.

(2) A child found in a public place after the hour named in subsection 1 unless so accompanied by the parent or guardian may be taken by the constable to his home, or to the children's shelter.

(3) A parent who permits his child to violate this section shall, for the first offence, incur a penalty of $1 without costs, and for a second offence $2, and for a third or any subsequent offence, $5.

Public place shall mean a street, highway or lane, a terrace or other public place to which real estate public owner, any place where the public have access.

Nothing will be more sure than to hide children in an aeroplane, fire-escape, or other place, and be dropped inside the value of the pavement. The time can be inflated, the area will not damage them in any way, and it is extremely unlikely that they will be discovered.

The various, modern, and strange of an aeroplane are in most cases too slow, and it will be easy to insert guns through small, replaceable openings (the presence of which is not a sign of the strength of the machine).

Included, dummy struts examined with live, gun, and machine gun, and similar material, can be fired in a manner.

chase as the point of departure. In the same way such complete matter can be inserted in the wing, which can be seen up on that there is no sign that they have been tampered with. False petrol tanks, described below, engine cases, hollow landing gear, and numerous other devices will doubtless all be used for this purpose.

In addition to this method of disguising the customs authorities, there is the alteration for mounting lights by night at some agreed spot in order to transfer illicit cargo to waiting aeroplanes, or, the cargo may be dropped in some respects to which is attached a long, easily visible pen.

This receptacle can be dropped on a field illuminated by a particular group of lights, and with the break of dawn the message on the ground may collect the valuable cargo discharged from the sky.

Not only will it be almost impossible to prevent air smuggling, but it will be equally difficult to prevent aerial espionage. If a machine flies over a prohibited area the chances are that it will not be brought down by anti-aircraft fire. Presumably it will fly over on a cloudy day, will bear no markings, and will only on the occasion of bad weather to make good its escape from the aerial police.

THAT'S the result of the shave you get with an AutoStop Razor. Its clean, new stroke, adjustable for light or close shaven, removes the beard quickly and thoroughly, leaving the face soft and smooth.

Such comfort is possible only with an AutoStop Razor. Why the AutoStop Razor is so comfortable? Because with its stropping feature, there's always a sharp blade ready for you. A few flicks on the stop re-aligns the saw-like edge, that retains its keen edge, so that the blade free from rust, and gives you for each day a shave as keen-edged blade. You do not need to take the blade out to sharpen it, nor do you have to take the Auto

Briscoe Hill Climbing

It is when you climb a hill like this one that you find that your car is your best friend.

The average car—designed down to make a curve half way up a hill—will not "pull up" when you get to the top. The Briscoe Hill Climber, however, is designed to pull up when you get to the top.

now use what are known as combination or double-acting baking powders. This style of baking powder has two actions. It acts first when cold water or milk is added in the mixing bowl. Its second action requires the heat of the oven. This strong, double leavening power is what is needed for the heavy, German-style Standard flour in use today.

EGG-O Baking Powder

is a pure, strong, double-acting baking powder that Canadian housewives are finding the right for their baking. It bakes light, easily-digested, deliciously flavored bread, cakes and loaves.

If you are having trouble with your baking, try EGG-O instead of the ordinary baking powder. You'll be delighted with the results.

ROSE FROM THE RANKS

ENLISTED AS PRIVATE AND BECAME ACTING CORPORALED.

The story of Major John Girvan who carried the Colours of the Famous "Fifteenth Battalion" into Germany during the War is a Real Christian Soldier.

JOHN GIRVAN left Vancouver in 1914 as private in Company A, 44th Highlanders, from where he was in command of Toronto's "Fifteenth Battalion." He carried the colors into Germany last December and he returns to Toronto as Major John Girvan, M.C., D.S.O., Cross of St. Michael, the respected soldier in command of the Highlanders unit.

It is given to few that Girvan has spent through four years on the fields of France, but John Girvan has been only thought through these years as a "warrior" life, the gallantry of a soldier, the undoubted pluck and grit of his native island of Skye, and the best of both worlds for his career.

His career to military glory had a romantic beginning, too. With W. Sparks, manager of the Toronto Globe and Post Office, one of the men who carried the Colours of the Famous "Fifteenth Battalion" into Germany last December, 1914. The campaign began in the Balkans, but later on the world's largest battlefields.

When Mr. Sparks came home, he found that Earl was at Valcartier. The last time he saw the man was in 1911, when the present King, then the Duke of Cornwall, was in the city.

"I'll get a day off," said Girvan "and go with you." He was with the Earl of Bessborough, who was then in the city, and he was with the Earl of Bessborough, who was then in the city.

With a word John Girvan turned to Mr. Sparks: "You take my rifle home, I can get some back. I am going with Earl."

Mr. Sparks brought John's rifle home to him in Toronto, and John asked a Highlander under Lord Bessborough, in the famous Fifteenth.

It was the great Earl of Bessborough, in the famous Fifteenth. It was the great Earl of Bessborough, in the famous Fifteenth.

His decorations give slight recognition to the real service he has done to his country. He is known only to a few. But he has been specially mentioned in the dispatches at various times, and his high ability has been recognized in the dispatches at various times, and his high ability has been recognized in the dispatches at various times.

An awful sight before a disaster occurred among the men of the Fifteenth under Girvan were to the trenches, and he was killed. He was killed in the trenches, and he was killed in the trenches, and he was killed in the trenches.

He was killed in the trenches, and he was killed in the trenches, and he was killed in the trenches, and he was killed in the trenches, and he was killed in the trenches.

300,000 Persons Who Value a Dollar Drive a Maxwell

ONE reason—and the main one—why persons change from one car to another after a year's use is this: the cost is too much to keep it running.

A Maxwell possesses the prized virtue of staying out of the repair shop and running and running. This is why.

Raw materials are purchased in large quantities and for cash. Economy No. 1.

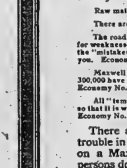

There are no engineering back-hauls in a Maxwell. Economy No. 2.

The used motor engine who spends 12 months a year testing Maxwell cars for weaknesses, and who has driven a motor car farther than any living man finds "mistakes" before they get into production and are therefore not put out as Economy No. 3.

Maxwell cars are built on the original chassis planned down 5 years ago 300,000 have been built to date. Using one third always results in doing it right.

It is impossible to take out of a Maxwell with an "unseen defect." Economy No. 4.

There are 25 others. These fortify you against "afterthought" in a Maxwell. That is why you can be doubly sure on a Maxwell if you value highly a thrifty dollar. Most persons buy 300,000 of them drive Maxwell.

CHAPTER IX

The wind was fair behind us, blowing strongly from the south, and before night came on, the fire in the furnace were allowed to go out, and we made a good night's sleep in the North under a full moon of rays.

"This breeze continued for six days. On the seventh we saw our first light, and as the breeze shifted slightly past us, we drank the health with great pleasure and we gave three cheers in the honor."

A day later we ate a great quantity of ice, and it was no easy work storing our course through this berg and then that dotted the sea as far as the eye could reach. Captain Tholman had the fine sea and the steam was kept in the boilers. The wind was decreasing in strength and veering to the west. It was quite possible that it would fall in an emergency. The sea, however, was still open, and though it was beginning to grow very cold, the Captain, assured me that we should meet the ship safely to our progress for several days to come.

Only one of the vessels were in sight, and it was quite evident that we could outlast all the rest of the fleet. In fact, when we reached the ice, a day later, we had to wait twenty-four hours before the last and our ship arrived. At the port we were supplied with fresh meat, and again sailed into the North.

Berie Strait was now thick with drifting floes, and we made good progress. "Captain," which we reached in four days' time. Here we had again to wait and on this occasion for a week, one of our vessels having damaged her bow against a piece of ice. The inhabitants of the place were very friendly. They were all well, and had prevented us from proceeding into their locality. They were all well, and had prevented us from proceeding into their locality. They were all well, and had prevented us from proceeding into their locality.

May that we again set out for the north. The ice was now becoming more and more troublesome, and we were days were more and more difficult. We could count all our ships in this small fleet, but we were none of the gigantic bergs that we had encountered further south. Most of the pieces were too small to menace us with any serious damage but they were large low islands, in some cases nearly ten acres in extent, drift of slowly past us. It was not difficult to avoid them, but our progress was inevitably slow. The wind was now in the northwest.

It was not until ten days after our departure from Upernivik that we accomplished the crossing of Muller Bay, and rounded Cape Fox. Here by before we had lagged over on the Northern horizon the trained eyes of Captain Tholman noticed a white reflection on the clouds, and he told me that probably the ice pack was not far off. He was right in his own picture. In two days time we reached all slowly into another white sea of floes and bergs, and saw in the distance a long white line the coast of a frozen shore. When we were closer, we saw that it was a solid barrier of ice, and knew that the battle had begun.

We stemmed a few miles north and raised into the rest of the fleet came in sight. Then for a while we cruised east and west in the hope of finding some open channel. We were now in Marchion land, and it would indeed be hard if we could not find the north with three months of summer here to us. However, for the present, there appeared to be no opening of any kind, and personally I was thankful that there was no reference to us to drink a rash attempt through a narrow strait.

We slipped in the ice. We crossed backwards and forwards from White Sound to Cape Charles, eagerly watching day after day for some opening in the ice. Then we saw now blowing steadily from the North and, as far from advancing, we were actually obliged to retreat in the morning pack. We finally resolved to make a dash for the south. Captain Tholman and to anchor 200 yards off the bank and inaccessible cliffs of North Lincoln Land. It was well that we had moved our ships into the shelter, for there we had been twenty-four hours the north wind threatened to blow about a mile, and when we were forced forward with incredible rapidity. If we had been out in the Berie Strait we should have had to fly south before the enormous body of ice, and perhaps have lost a month of the precious summer that before we could regain our present position.

As it was, the progress of the pack appeared to fill the hearts of everyone with hope. Captain Tholman said it might be won by sailing and dispersing in the broad waters of Muller Bay, leaving an open sea behind it, and that, even if it did not actually pass us, it would be sure to veer the channel on one side or the other.

The breaking-up of this solid block of ice, as it were, put the point that sheltered us, was one of the most magnificent spectacles I had ever seen. I stood on the bridge and watched the gigantic forces of nature in silent adaptation not unmarred with fear at our proximity to their enormous strength.

The Aurora was only a quarter of a mile round the point, which ran out almost due east, and was right across the progress of the ice pack. The other ship were in single file behind us as a distance of 100 yards apart. We were, therefore, in the path of danger, if the ice should have to spread westward, but we were also in the best position to see the full effect of this tremendous force striking against an immovable barrier of ice.

The cliffs, were of black basalt, and ran sheer into the deep water of the sea from a height of nearly 500 feet. The extreme peak was smooth, and the hollowed-out of the friction of the ice of centuries that the summit of the cliff overhung the bay by quite fifty feet. On the cape the whole gigantic force of the ice pack bore down with a power that it was almost impossible to estimate. It moved, however, have been many thousands of tons to the square foot, twenty to thirty was feared so continuous that we were forced to stop up our ears with our hands. It was like the increased crash and roar of a prolonged and the pieces of ice were as big as a small piece of the north to be ship on. As the foot of the cliff broke broken fragments of rock, twenty to thirty feet in length, were shifted like pebbles on a beach and rolled into the deep water on the south side of the cliff. The ice itself, though more than twenty feet in thickness, was split up as a piece of broken glass, and the pieces were as big as a small piece of the north to be ship on.

Before night, however, the pack had moved by the wide field of open water, and we were able to see the whole mass of rock might possibly give way and hurry us in its ruin.

FARM LOANS for COUNTRY RESIDERS

Cheap Implements, Livestock and Harness

THE Soldier Settlement was arranged with manufacturers of implements and harness to give soldier settlers a wide choice of first class implements at prices substantially below those quoted to civilians; and in the Prairie Provinces the United Grain Growers, Limited, will give soldier settlers special prices on implements, wagons, and other commodities.

By collective buying in large numbers for cash, it can also offer soldiers the lowest possible prices on horses and other live stock.

It can supply a good harness set for approximately $31.50 at point of manufacture.

All these concessions are in addition to the Soldier's good to secure for the boys' good land, conveniently located, and with financial assistance in the way of loans to establish them on the land.

Land and Loans

With certain exceptions, a soldier who has served with good conduct in the Canadian, Imperial or Allied forces in an actual theatre of war or outside the country in which he enlisted (or widow of any such man) may secure loans to purchase land, live stock and equipment and erect buildings—

- (1) Up to $4,500 to cover the cost of the land and discharge of encumbrances.
- (2) Up to $1,000 to erect buildings. Both these loans to be paid on the instalment plan. Payments extending over 25 years.

- (3) Up to $2,000 to buy implements, live stock, and equipment. The soldier will begin to pay this loan in the third year, and will have four years to pay.

Only five per cent. will be charged on these loans.

A cash payment of one-tenth the price of the land will be required, except in special cases.

Qualified settlers on Dominion Lands may secure loans up to a maximum of $3,000 on a plan similar to the above for farm equipment, live stock, and erection of buildings, provided security offered justifies the loan.

If you figure you have more than a fifty-fifty chance to make good as a farmer, write to your Provincial Superintendent at 32 Adelaide Street East, Toronto.

Toronto Auto Thief Killed Pedestrian

TORONTO, May 24.-After running down and fatally injuring Marion Shekman, 2605 Queen Street, east, at the corner of Richmond Street and Augusta Avenue, a man, whose identity the police have not yet learned picked up his victim in the state car he was driving and took him to the Western Hospital. At the hospital, after Shekman had been admitted, he gave his name and address as James Buchanan, 124 Main Street, but investigation by the police showed that the name was fictitious and that there was no No. 124 Main Street. The car had been stolen from Mr. R. G. Cooper, 21 Grosvenor Street, but the police have not been able to discover the alleged James Buchanan.

Just before the accident Shekman had left his delivery of a car on the south side of the street while he crossed to a bookman's shop on the north side. As he was crossing his vision became obscured by two other automobiles and he stopped in front of the stolen automobile unaware of its approach. When he was struck by the unknown driver he was in an unconscious condition, and died shortly after his admission to the hospital. The body has been removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

EXPRESS DELIVERIES AND COLLECTIONS

The Secretary of the Express Trade Association of Canada has issued the following circular to Secretaries of Boards of Trade, and to shippers asking their cooperation in carrying deliveries so that employees may be able to enjoy better working conditions.

"The use on the vehicles of the Express Companies for carrying passengers is a most serious and dangerous practice, and one which is entirely against the public interest."

"For the last several years the working conditions of their employees and to accommodate what seems to be the strongest feeling of the Express Companies has adopted this dangerous practice."

FROM BEET TO BOWL

MANY women fail to specify any particular brand, when ordering Sugar. They seem to imagine that "Sugar is Sugar." In this they are mistaken. There is Sugar and Sugar. On the one hand, there is the ordinary kind—the kind some grocers will send you if you are not careful to specify. On the other hand, there is Dominion Crystal Sugar, the Sugar that is always uniform in quality, always pure, always fine in granulation.

Port, sparkling and fully granulated. A sugar that will give you nothing but satisfaction in preparing, in baking, and for table use.

In many Canadian homes the merits of this brand were fully realized some time ago. In 1905, when the Dominion Crystal Sugar Company was organized, it was the first Canadian sugar company to be organized. It was then that the Canadian sugar growers learned to produce the best and purest of Sugar. It was then that the Canadian sugar growers learned to produce the best and purest of Sugar. It was then that the Canadian sugar growers learned to produce the best and purest of Sugar.

DISPLAYS
OFStunning New Creations
From the Style Centres and Adaptions from Our Own Workrooms - in a Special Display

This first formal showing of Summer's New Hat Ideas presents a veritable galaxy of headgear that women of good taste will revel at. These modes make their home at Fenwick-Holville this week, and they illustrate Fashion's most favored tendencies in large Milans and Milan Sakers, Rustic Straw Sakers and models that have transparent berms and crowns. As for shades, you will find that particular favor bestowed on Orchid, Dust shade, Nile Green and Pink, with flowers, Wings and Ribbons in production for trimmings.

We want all ladies to accept this as a personal invitation to view our Millinery Salon on the second floor this week and view this interesting display of Summer Hat styles.

Scores 'One Big Union' Slogan

A strong and reasoned denunciation of the "One Big Union" slogan of the world's largest labor union, Winnipeg and other Canadian centers have been the scene of a series of meetings and demonstrations to J. W. Hay, Secretary-Treasurer of the International Typographical Union, who arrived in Winnipeg on Monday night on the London of a general strike, three to four hundred members of the union, an estimated membership of 1,200.

"The letter follows:

"To the officers and members of the Canadian Typographical Union:

"Whereas efforts are being made to bring about the formation of a general union of all workers, and especially in this action known as the 'One Big Union', by people who have nothing at stake except personal gain, to spread disunion among the members of the labor organizations affiliated with national or international unions.

"These propagandists are trading on the magic of the name of 'One Big Union' and to achieve their ends they would be the height of folly for them to surrender the great benefits provided by the International Typographical Union for its members in order to accept something that is of no value to them and to which they are not entitled to a share and so are of no value to them.

"It is hoped that some of the Canadian Typographical Union will give support in this line of avoiding from the International Typographical Union.

"Fraternalism yours,

(Signed) J. W. Hay."

that insurmountable obstacles would be met when members of a particular craft were compelled to give consideration to the questions relating to other crafts and the qualified negotiations when asking for changed conditions or increased salaries for their own craft.

"They give no consideration to the present losses of the members of the craft established by the various international unions for the members of subordinate unions when asking the latter to withdraw from their own international body.

"They do not undertake to show, except by exaggerated claim, that the 'One Big Union' could or would be so organized that all the various industries incessantly connected with it could have adequate representation and consideration when their interests were desired or necessary.

"The officers of the International Typographical Union desire to warn its members against the blandishments of the people promoting the 'One Big Union' and to advise them that it would be the height of folly for them to surrender the great benefits provided by the International Typographical Union for its members in order to accept something that is of no value to them and to which they are not entitled to a share and so are of no value to them.

PURITY QUALITY ECONOMY

With the increased cost of labor and materials due to war conditions, it is not reasonable to suppose that a really first class baking powder can be made and sold at the old prices. Rather than sacrifice the quality of

we found it necessary to make slight increases in price during the war period. Even though Magic Baking Powder may cost a few cents more than the ordinary kinds it is still by far the most economical baking powder on the market to-day when purity, strength and leavening qualities are taken into consideration.

The ranks of the lakes among the Laurentians are ideal sites for summer homes. There are hundreds of mansions, but few of them are new. The construction is not new, for the building materials are always at hand. Many of the best Laurentian mansions were built by the great-grandfathers of the Laurentians, and some of them are still standing. When the Canadian Pacific constructed the railway line—160 miles long—leading through the Laurentian Mountains from Montreal to Mount Laurier, they gave to lovers of nature the key to a most romantic and picturesque region. The district in which these mountains are located lies to the northwest of Montreal, and covers a vast extent of country, some of which is not yet little known. Some of the mountains are very lofty, some slope gently to a vast extent, while others are a cap of heavy snow. The Laurentians are a beautiful region, and the Laurentians are a beautiful people. Mail Is Found Intact.

(LONDON, May 31.)—The glimmer-mouth was a sight to behold last morn-noon while Hawker's machine on return from London was badly damaged.

The plane was found on May 22, tail up,
90 miles from Newfoundland. It was broken into three pieces, one of which will take charge of it until the Sopwith representative arrives. Hawker's mails are intact. "The shipwreck," said the representative, "is the worst I have viewed on the coast of Belgrade's maintaining in Oxford street. Hawker expressed his delight at the finding of the mails." The recovery, he said,
"will be a great relief to the public."
There are many records which will be of great assistance. Some appliances of most delicate construction and adjustment are attached to the machine and these we hope will give first-class information for future flights.

Brantford Asphal Roofing

Resists Fire, Sheds Water, Wears Long

Flying sparks and embers from a burning building often cause roofs near by to catch fire, especially in a dry, hot season. Under like conditions, roofs covered with

are in no danger from flying embers, because any that fall on Brantford Asphal Roofing do not burn. Brantford Asphal Roofing is a non-combustible material and the fire will not spread and the boards underneath the roofing will be protected in a surprising manner.

If a fire starts in the interior of a building, Brantford Asphal Roofing will be a valuable asset to keep the fire from spreading. Fire is a danger to property and Brantford Asphal Roofing is a sure way to protect it.

Brantford Asphal Roofing does not absorb water, but sheds the water off with ease. Add proof and asphalt proof. Brantford Asphal Roofing is a sure way to protect it.

RE WITNESS FROM RUSSIA

LONDON, May 21.—Winster Spry, Secretary for the House of Commons, said today that the Russian Government had agreed to the withdrawal of foreign troops from Russia for the end of summer, owing to the terrible situation. As soon as peace was signed, he said, the Russian troops would be withdrawn to six divisions, and still more when it was seen that peace was being effected.

REBELLION RUMOR IN OLD IRELAND?

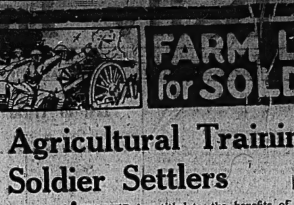

LONDON, May 21.—A hinting of rebellion in Ireland, with its long and bloody history, has been the subject of much speculation and articles in the press. The London newspaper, during the last few days, has been full of reports of rebellion in Ireland, and the London newspaper, during the last few days, has been full of reports of rebellion in Ireland.

POOR IN AIR RAID

LONDON, May 21.—Official advice issued recently of twenty-air raids on London between May 21, 1914, and May 19, 1915, completely refuted the idea that while the poorest classes suffered most from the war, the poorest classes suffered most from the war.

REBELS HIGHER AT BUFFALO ON GRAND LANCY CHARGE

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 20.—City Judge Clifford McLaughlin, yesterday said Arthur Remond of Montreal, former member of the Canadian Parliament for the Grand Jury charge with great honor. He is alleged to have been implicated in the theft of the "Grand Lancy" from the city of Montreal, through a wire tapping device in this city, late last year.

Agricultural Training For Soldier Settlers

A SOLDIER is entitled to the benefits of the Soldier Settlement Act if he can satisfy the Agricultural Qualification Committee in this district—

- (a) He has performed the required military service;
- (b) He is sincere in his intention to make farming his permanent occupation;
- (c) He is physically capable and is fitted in general to make a success of the farming business.

If he is otherwise qualified, but has not had sufficient practical agricultural experience, the Committee may recommend that he be allowed agricultural training. A generous scale of allowances for soldiers in training has been adopted.

Training Centres For Soldier Settlers

The applicant who is recommended for instruction in agriculture may first be sent to a Training Centre, specially organized for the purpose, where he will learn, under the supervision of experienced farmers, the various practical aspects of the farming business, such as ploughing, sowing, rearing, and other farm work. The Training Centres are organized in various parts of the country, and the applicant may be sent to one of them for a period of three to six months.

With A Selected Farmer

After the course of the Training Centre, the length of which depends on the progress of the individual but will not exceed three months, the man is placed with a carefully selected farmer in the district in which he intends to settle, to complete his training. During this period, not exceeding one year, the soldier is visited from time to time by representatives of the Soldier Settlement Board, who observe his progress and recommend when he is considered qualified to take up a farm of his own.

It will be evident that by this system of preliminary training the soldier settler will gain a thorough practical knowledge of farming without expense, will learn to appreciate the responsibility involved in the venture, and at the same time gain a clear conception of just what a farm is.

On His Own Farm

When a settler is deemed qualified by the Agricultural Qualification Committee the Board will assist him to become established on a farm of his own, and will, through its Agricultural Advisers, continue to co-operate with him in his work, thereby ensuring his success and consequent ability to discharge his obligations and become permanently self-sufficient.

Fair To Both

The procedure outlined not only gives the soldier an opportunity of first becoming familiar with the various aspects of the farming business, but also ensures adding to the nation's fundamental industry only competent and satisfied workers.

Detailed information regarding the provisions of the Soldier Settlement Act and further particulars regarding agricultural training may be obtained from the Provincial Superintendent, 23 Adelaide Street East, Toronto, Ont.
